Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI). We would like to invite you to take part in a study that seeks to better understand women's participation in the governance of local communities in Nigeria.

We are inviting you to participate in this study because a woman in your household, who may be your wife, daughter, or other adult relative, is attending meetings that discuss women's participation in local governance.

If you agree to participate in this study, you will be asked questions that will be compiled with the responses of everyone else who participates to create an overall understanding of how Nigerians like you think about the role of women in local governance. Other people will not be able to identify your individual responses on the basis of your involvement in this study. We hope this will help you feel comfortable participating in group discussions for our study and answering any questions posed to you honestly.

Procedures

If you agree to participate in this study, you will be asked to do the following:

- Attend group meetings organized in your community relating to women's participation in local government. These meetings will last up to 4 hours each and would be held approximately once per month over the next 5 months.
- Participate in an interview for a survey that involves questions about your experiences with local governance and your feelings about women's political participation more generally. The questions should take about 45 minutes to complete.
- The total time commitment for participants in
